WHO RESCUED WHOM?

BY JAN BREWER

Little more than two years ago, after losing a beloved canine companion named Romeo, we visited the Sandusky County Humane Society in its former quarters. The Shelter, now on River Road by the new Valley View Health Care Center, had several kittens and cats.

On entering, John spied a cat who looked like one we had when we first married. She was being coy, having been there two years because Tortoise Shell cats are not quickly admired. But she had John's heart in the first moment. Meanwhile a Calico kitten had reached up and attached herself to me, finally jumping into my arms. In those few moments Rosey and Nosey (as we named them) rescued us from the loneliness left by Romeo's departure.

ADVENTURE!

Writer visits Clyde to Discover today's version of "Winesburg" people

2019 is the centennial of "Winesburg, Ohio" by Sherwood Anderson.

Jack Curtis is an author from Brookline, Mass. who visited Clyde last week to research "Winesburg" characters for an anticipated book.

"Anderson talks about people and 'adventures' so I ventured into Clyde." He rode around with Mayor Black, dined at Hall's and Main Street Café, got apples at Eshleman's, rode his bike and observed "us". JB
